

The Japanese Chose The Smith & Wesson

This new publication covers Smith & Wesson Model 1, Model 1½, Model 2 Army and Model 3 revolvers imported into Japan from the mid-1850s through the early 1900s. They represent both commercial and military sales. The Model 2 Army revolvers were the first handguns purchased in quantity by the Japanese government and the four variations of Model 3 revolvers were the first official handguns of both the Imperial Japanese Army and the Imperial Japanese Naval. The Model 3 revolvers served through the end of the Second World War and were favorite souvenirs brought back by U.S. veterans.

The book consists of the appropriate chapters extracted from Japanese Imported Arms Of The Early Meiji Era and expanded with additional detailed color photographs of weapons and newly reported examples. Consisting of 70 pages, the book covers the subject matter with many color and black and white photographs, drawings, and a detailed listing of known surviving examples.
